Afghanistan

Security situation

On 14.01.24, a suicide attack was carried out on the Taliban governor's office of Nimruz province, injuring three people. On the same day, the Afghanistan Freedom Front reported that it had fired rockets at the Taliban governor's office of Panjshir province, killing two Taliban insurgents. Most recently, on 02.01.24, a missile attack was carried out on the office of the Taliban governor in Badakhshan province (cf. BN of 08.01.24). Another attack was waged outside a shopping centre in the Hazara district of Dashti Barchi in Kabul on 11.01.24, killing six people and injuring 15 others. Most recently, on 07.01.24, the Islamic State of Khorasan Province (ISKP) carried out an attack on a minibus carrying Hazara passengers (cf. BN of 08.01.24). Another explosive attack was carried out on a vehicle belonging to employees of a prison in Kabul on 09.01.24 for which the ISKP has claimed responsibility. Three people were killed and four were wounded in the attack. Also on 11.01.24, a blast occurred in the city of Mazar-e Sharif in Balkh province. Nothing is known about the perpetrators or the number of casualties.¹

Governance

On 11.01.24, it was reported that long queues comprising thousands of people from all over the country had formed outside the central passport issuing office in Kabul as the Taliban have suspended online passport applications, forcing people to apply in person.

Taliban leader emir Haibatullah Akhonzada has met with the leader of the allied Pakistani party Jamiat Ulema-e Islam Fazlur (JUI-F), Fazlur Rehman, to discuss tensions that have arisen between Pakistan and Afghanistan over the spike in terrorist attacks being carried out by the Pakistani Taliban (Tehrik-i-Taliban Pakistan, TTP) and the repatriation of undocumented Afghan refugees from Pakistan (cf. BN of 08.01.24). On his return to Pakistan, Rehman said emir Akhonzada had called for the resumption of talks between Islamabad and the TTP via the Taliban's political office in Doha.²

Humanitarian situation

Northern Afghanistan (Badakhshan province) has been hit by yet another earthquake. There were no immediate reports of deaths or damage to buildings. According to reports issued on 11.01.24, the WFP has issued a warning that around one in three people across the country face uncertainty over their next meal as the country faces a daunting winter season.³

Cameroon

NGO employees kidnapped

According to media reports, on 10.01.24, three Cameroonian employees of the French NGO Première Urgence Internationale were kidnapped in Yémé, a village in northern Cameroon. Yémé is located in the Extrême-Nord region, where the Islamist terrorist organisation Boko Haram is active and civilians have been repeatedly kidnapped.⁴

China / Taiwan

Parliamentary and presidential elections in Taiwan

On 13.01.24, the citizens of Taiwan elected Lai Ching-te, the candidate of the ruling Democratic Progressive Party (DPP), with around 40% of the vote, to succeed President Tsai Ing-wen, who was not allowed to run again after serving two terms in office. Turnout was around 72%. Like the candidates of the Kuomintang (KMT), which advocates more dialogue with Beijing, and the Taiwan People's Party (TPP), Lai is in favour of maintaining the status quo. A spokesperson for the Chinese government which had previously tried to influence the election criticized the result, saying it does not represent mainstream public opinion on the island, describing a "reunification of China" as inevitable. The DPP lost its absolute majority in parliament (Legislative Yuan), which can pass laws independently of the President, in the parliamentary elections which were also held on 13.01.24, dropping from 62 to 51 seats. The KMT won 52 seats and the TPP eight.⁵

Democratic Republic of the Congo

Presidential elections: Constitutional Court confirms election result

According to media reports, the Congolese Constitutional Court rejected two legal challenges submitted on the election results on 09.01.24.

At the end of December 2023, nine opposition candidates had jointly signed a declaration, describing the election of 20.12.23 as fraudulent, rejecting the results and calling for a rerun. On 03.01.24, Théodore Ngoy who came last in the presidential election also submitted an application to the Constitutional Court for the election to be annulled. According to him, the election was marred by a number of irregularities.

After hearing both applications on 08.01.24, the Constitutional Court rejected them on 09.01.24 and announced the final election results. The reason for the decision was the enormous gap between Félix Tshisekedi who garnered 73.47% of the vote and the runner up Moise Katumbi who took 18.08% of the votes. The alleged irregularities would not have changed the ranking of the candidates, the court said. The percentages of votes obtained announced by the Constitutional Court differed only slightly from the figures published by the Independent National Electoral Commission (CENI) on 31.12.23.

The two main opposition candidates Moise Katumbi and Martin Fayulu, who came third with 4.92% of the vote, have decided not to challenge the election result in court. One of the reasons for this was the lack of trust in the judicial system (cf. BN of 08.01.24). Tshisekedi is to be sworn in for a second term of office on 20.01.24.⁶

Ecuador

Security crisis: escalation of violence with kidnappings, hostage-takings and homicides

President Daniel Noboa declared a 60-day state of emergency on 08.01.24 after the imprisoned leader of the drug gang Los Choneros, Adolfo Macías, also known by the alias Fito, escaped from a prison in Guayaquil on 07.01.24, sparking a wave of prison riots including hostage-takings. As a result, violence has also escalated on the streets and numerous attacks - including hostage-taking and kidnappings - have been carried out on shopping centres, hospitals, a television station, universities and schools in a number of cities since 09.01.24. The security situation has been particularly volatile in and around the city of Guayaquil, which is considered to be an epicentre for drug trafficking. However, there have also been reports of security incidents in other cities, including bombings and kidnappings of police officers. Other detainees, including Fabricio Colón Pico, alias El Salvaje, a prominent member of the drug gang Los Lobos, reportedly escaped too, and the police say that at least ten people were killed. In order to bring the security crisis back under control, President Noboa signed a decree for a state of emergency on 09.01.24, saying the move had been prompted by the existence of an internal armed conflict. The military operation within the country was intended to restore control and, within the framework of international humanitarian law, to crack down on 22 drug gangs, including Los Choneros, Los Lagartos, Los Lobos and Los Tiguerones, which had been designated terrorist organisations and parties to the conflict. Since then, more than 1,300 people have been arrested in numerous security operations and around 180 prison officers who had been kidnapped in various prisons were freed by 14.01.24.

According to experts, there has been an increased politicisation of violence since the 2023 elections, combined with the struggle for power and influence. They say numerous institutions have been infiltrated by organised crime, while drug gangs are also exercising control over many of the country's prisons. According to the authorities, drug gangs operating in the country have links to various Mexican cartels, among others. In 2023, the number of people who were victims of violent deaths rose to 8,000, therefore almost doubling year-on-year and actually quadrupling since 2018. This means the country that had long been considered to be comparatively calm and safe currently has one of the highest murder rates in the region. Clashes are taking place between members of the various criminal groups as well as between state security forces and drug gangs.⁷

Egypt

Four deaths in custody since the beginning of 2024

According to several reports issued by human rights organisations on 03.01.24, 07.01.24 and 13.01.24, at least four people have died in various detention facilities since the beginning of 2024 due to a lack of medical care. In all four cases, the people concerned, some of whom had been detained for politically motivated reasons according to the organisations, are said not to have received the appropriate medical treatment.⁸

El Salvador

Parliament adopts reforms to Code of Criminal Procedure and Terrorism Act

On 03.01.24, parliament dominated by the ruling party approved reforms to the Code of Criminal Procedure and the Special Law Against Acts of Terrorism. They are intended to give the Prosecutor General Rodolfo Delgado who is considered to have close ties to the government more powers to fight crime. However, in this context members of the opposition fear that the lack of control mechanisms could potentially lead to the abuse of power or politically-motivated persecution. Among other things, they consider the wide discretionary scope Delgado has and the conditions under which he can now designate individuals and groups as terrorists to be problematic. It means individuals or organisations on the list could potentially have their assets confiscated. There are no national mechanisms in place to remove them from the list.⁹

Iran

Reports on several prison sentences

According to media reports issued on 09.01.24, a former professional bodybuilder who had been previously convicted was sentenced to a further five years and eight months in prison. According to information circulating on social media, the man was charged with gathering and collusion as well as propaganda against the system. Having been previously sentenced to seven years in prison in 2019, the former athlete was released early from prison in February 2023 as part of an amnesty due to his deteriorating health. He was arrested again in September 2023 as he tried to leave the country for Turkey.

According to other media reports, the father of a student being held in detention has been sentenced to five years in prison. They say the father had been held in temporary detention since December 2022, inter alia on charges of having a financial connection with an anti-government group abroad. The imprisoned son of the convicted man is a winner of international science Olympiads who, together with a fellow student, was sentenced to 16 years in prison in 2020 on charges that include propaganda against the system and endangering national security.

It was also reported that the father of a protester killed during rallies held in 2019 has been sentenced to 18 years in prison. The man gained notoriety after the death of his son because he repeatedly and publicly criticized the government's violent crackdown on protesters in 2019. He was arrested for the first time in April 2021 and sentenced to three years and six months in prison on several charges, two and a half years' exile from his home province and a two-year ban on leaving the country.¹⁰

Attack on military base in Sistan and Baluchestan province

According to media reports, an armed attack was carried out on a military base near Rask I (Sistan and Baluchestan province) on 10.01.24, killing at least one police officer. Jaish al-Adl (Army of Justice in Arabic), a Sunni Baluch separatist militant group has claimed responsibility for the attack. Members of the group had attacked a police station in the province back in December 2023 (cf. BN of 18.12.23). A large section of the population of the province of Sistan and Baluchistan, which borders Afghanistan and Pakistan, belongs to the country's Muslim Sunni minority.¹¹

Freedom of the press: two journalists released on bail

According to media reports issued on 14.01.24, two female journalists were released from Tehran's Evin prison on bail of 10 billion toman (around EUR 180,000; as of 15.01.24), having been detained for around 17 months. They have also been banned from leaving the country. The journalists attracted widespread media attention as both women had been sentenced to seven and six years in prison, respectively in October 2023 for their coverage of the death of Mahsa Amini (cf. BN of 23.10.23). The Iranian Journalists' Association has criticized the bail amounts.¹²

Iraq

Landmines

On 23.12.23, the agency responsible for landmines announced that around 2,100 square kilometres are still contaminated with explosive materials, almost 260 square kilometres of which are located in the Kurdistan Region. The use of mines in Iraq dates back to the First Gulf War in the 1980s. Since demining began in 2003, around 30,000 people have been killed or injured by mines.¹³

Conflict between Türkiye and the PKK

According to the Turkish Minister of Defence, Türkiye carried out airstrikes on a total of 14 Kurdish militant targets in the provinces of Dohuk and Erbil on 20.12.2013. It is not known how many militants of the PKK (Kurdistan Workers' Party) were killed or injured.

On 22.12.23 and 23.12.23, a total of 12 soldiers were killed in attacks carried out by PKK militants on Turkish soldiers stationed in the Kurdistan Region. Thirteen PKK supporters were "neutralized". The Turkish military typically uses the term "neutralized" to mean that the enemy has been killed, injured or has surrendered. Also on 23.12.23, the Turkish government announced that Sulaymaniyah International Airport would remain closed for flights to and from Turkey for a further six months. This measure was issued by the Turkish government in April 2023 citing the Patriotic Union of Kurdistan's (PUK) alleged support for the PKK in Sulaymaniyah province where the PUK is headquartered.

On 27.12.23, a village in the Chamchamal district (Sulaymaniyah province) was attacked by two suspected Turkish drones. The village itself had previously been evacuated, but according to eyewitness reports, several PKK supporters were injured in the attack. On 28.12.23 and 01.01.24, another village in the same district was also attacked by drones, causing an unknown extent of material damage.

According to the Turkish Ministry of Defence, it carried out several airstrikes in the mountains of the provinces of Dohuk and Sulaymaniyah on 06.01.24, claiming that PKK bunkers, camps and caves were destroyed and "numerous" PKK supporters were killed or injured.

Five more Turkish soldiers were killed in clashes that erupted between the PKK and the Turkish military on 12.01.24 and twelve PKK supporters were "neutralized".¹⁴

Attacks on facilities of the anti-ISIS coalition

Between 21.12.23 and 11.01.24, a total of eight attacks were carried out on bases of the US-led anti-ISIS coalition. At least three US soldiers were injured. One attack took place in al-Anbar using rocket fire, the remaining eight were carried out in Erbil using drones. The Islamic Resistance, a coalition of pro-Iranian militias in Iraq, has claimed responsibility for most of the attacks. Another attack on a Peshmerga base was later declared an accident by a spokesperson for the Badr organisation, a Shia militia, adding that the attack had actually been targeting coalition troops. At least two militia officials were killed in retaliatory strikes carried out by the US military and a total of 24 people were injured. Civilians are also said to have been among the casualties.

The Iraqi government condemned both the attacks carried out by the militias on coalition troops and the retaliatory strikes by the US. On 05.01.24, it announced its intention to end the presence of coalition troops. On 11.01.24, the Iraqi government launched an online survey asking citizens for their views about the continued deployment of the US-led anti-ISIS coalition in the country. On 14.01.24, it was announced that around 100 members of parliament had signed a petition to withdraw coalition troops. The coalition had been established in September 2014 in response to the rise of so-called ISIS. Although ISIS is considered to have been territorially defeated in Iraq since 2017, smaller attacks against the military, civilians and infrastructure continue to occur regularly.¹⁵

Lebanon

Situation in southern Lebanon and northern Israel

Regular exchanges of fire continue unabated between Hezbollah and the Israeli army. Due to the large number of incidents taking place, developments will be summarized.

In addition to the creation of further employment opportunities in the region and stricter environmental controls, the protestors are demanding the removal of the chairman of the National Oil Corporation (NOC), Farhat Bengdara. The latter is said to have committed serious violations in his capacity as chairman. Oil production had to be suspended at one of Libya's largest oil fields in the south of the country at the beginning of the month due to protests (cf. BN of 08.01.24).¹⁷

Following clashes with the Arakan Army in Paletwa (Chin state), 151 Tatmadaw soldiers fled to the Indian state of Mizoram on 27.12.23. Like around 80 other Myanmar soldiers, some of whom had fled to India with their families in November 2023, they were repatriated to Myanmar. In airstrikes carried out by the Tatmadaw in Rakhine State, 15 civilians were killed and around 30 others were injured in Buthidaung Buthidaung, Minbya and Mrauk-U, between 28.11.23. and 28.12.23. In total, the junta is said to have lost control of 16 cities in Northern Shan and 14 cities in Kachin, Kayah and Chin states and Sagaing region since the end of October 2023. On 11.01.24, representatives of the Tatmadaw and the Alliance agreed to a ceasefire brokered by China in northern Shan. Shortly afterwards, however, the fighting resumed.

According to UN estimates, one-third of Myanmar's population (18.6 million people, including six million children) are currently dependent on humanitarian aid. Around 2.6 million people were displaced at the end of December 2023 as a result of the civil war and the conflicts that preceded it.²⁰

Incendiary weapons were allegedly used the day before, but did not result in any casualties. The use of incendiary weapons against the civilian population is prohibited under international law.

In contrast to a peace conference held in August 2023, China was not represented (cf. BN of 07.08.23). According to media reports, Defence Minister Rustem Umerov proposed an international working group on the withdrawal of Russian troops from Ukraine, one of the points of the peace formula. He added that it would be impossible to talk about restoring the full sovereignty and territorial integrity of Ukraine without a complete withdrawal.

Andriy Yermak, Head of the Presidential Office, then expressed his view on the idea of freezing the war with the Russian Federation. He ruled out any such scenario, saying that the current government would not accept it. In this context, the report also refers to a survey conducted in December 2023, according to which around three quarters of the Ukrainian population are against giving up the occupied territories.³⁹

Civilian war casualties and humanitarian situation

Renewed large-scale Russian attacks claimed the lives of a total of four people on 08.01.24, two in the Khmelnytskyi region and one each in Kryvyi Rih (Dnipropetrovsk Oblast) and south of Kharkiv. According to Ukrainian reports, thirteen people, including Turkish journalists, were also injured when two missiles hit a hotel in Kharkiv on 10.01.24. On the same day, Russian airstrikes on the Kharkiv region partially destroyed a school, killing one person. Russian shelling on the eponymous capital of the Kherson region killed two people on 12.01.24. Six people were injured by Russian artillery fire on a harbour facility in Kherson on 13.01.24. Four firefighters were wounded in a drone attack carried out on a fire station in the same region on 14.01.24. Russian rocket fire on the town of Shostka (Sumy Oblast) led to a temporary loss of heating supply and one casualty on 14.01.24.

According to the Russian Federation-backed mayor of Horlivka in the occupied part of the Donetsk region, two people died as a result of a Ukrainian drone attack on 12.01.24. He said six people had been injured.

On 10.01.24, it was reported that the severe cold snap had led to power cuts in a total of more than 1,000 towns and villages spread across nine regions. The background to this was the weakened energy supply system due to targeted Russian attacks. On 12.01.24, almost 230 settlements remained without electricity, with the Dnipropetrovsk region being the worst affected.⁴⁰

According to the Reuters news agency, Ukraine is concentrating more on defence elsewhere than before. For some time now, the focus has been on the construction of fortifications in the form of barricades and trenches, for example in the Chernihiv region. According to media reports, the Russian Ministry of Defence announced on 13.01.24 that it had destroyed all intended targets in a group strike carried out on Ukrainian arms production facilities. The targets were reportedly facilities used for the production of gunpowder, grenades and drones.

According to Ukrainian reports issued on 09.01.24, the country now lacks air defence missiles after the last large-scale attacks. For the second week in a row, Ukraine has reportedly had to defend itself against Russian cyberattacks on state payment systems.⁴¹

Yemen

Attacks by US and Great Britain on Houthis

On 11.01.24, US and UK forces carried out airstrikes on more than 60 targets in Houthi-controlled areas in Yemen. According to reports, targets in or near the capital Sanaa and the port of Hodeidah on the west coast were hit. Other locations were reportedly targeted in the cities of Taizz and Dhamar. According to the Houthis, five fighters were killed in the attacks and six others were injured. On 13.01.23, US and UK forces carried out further airstrikes against Houthi positions. According to the US, precision munitions were used for the attacks in order to avoid casualties. The attacks took place a few days after the US-led mission aimed at protecting shipping traffic in the Red Sea issued a final warning to the Houthis who had had carried out a total of 27 attacks on cargo ships in the Red Sea since November 2023, ostensibly to weaken Israel (cf. BN of 08.01.24).

On 14.01.24, a US fighter jet shot down an anti-ship cruise missile fired from the Houthi militant areas toward a US destroyer operating in the Red Sea.⁴²
