According to the Safeguarding Health in Conflict Coalition (SHCC) health facilities were taken over and occupied on at least 41 occasions in Sudan in 2023, often for several weeks. These incidents most frequently involved the RSF in Khartoum, with three attributed to the SAF. On six occasions, health facilities were repurposed for non-medical purposes, including as a military base or otherwise to plan military activities. Snipers were often positioned on hospital rooftops and armed personnel stationed inside health buildings. RSF members twice forcefully evicted patients from hospital wards, and the facility was repurposed for the use of wounded RSF personnel. Download data. Insecurity Insight recently published a new handbook on security risk management in the health sector. Christina Wille explains in this blog why this is so urgently needed. The handbook provides guidance on how to implement a range of actions intended to promote respectful and violence-free environments and prepare individuals or organisations to face and respond appropriately to violent incidents, also dealing with the aftermath of such events. The handbook helps to identify practical activities that local health partners can implement and that NGO partners can include in partnership agreements and budget for. It brings together some of the best practices on security risk management and proposes a framework adapted for health care providers working with limited resources. The objective is to promote an approach that considers the safety and security of health professionals while ensuring patients' access to care.
