NATIONS

Kroatice (77

module

Distr.

Economic and Social

Council

TREMICENTES UDEN SKRWELBE

| EKSEMPLARER

TEVE DEN 21.4.98

GENERAL

E/CN.4/1998/63 14 January 1998

Original: ENGLISH

COMMISSION ON HUMAN RIGHTS Fifty-fourth session Item 10 of the provisional agenda

QUESTION OF THE VIOLATION OF HUMAN RIGHTS AND FUNDAMENTAL FREEDOMS IN ANY PART OF THE WORLD, WITH PARTICULAR REFERENCE TO COLONIAL AND OTHER DEPENDENT COUNTRIES AND TERRITORIES

Situation of human rights in the territory of the former Yugoslavia of the Commission on Human Rights on the situation of human rights in Bosnia and Herregovina, the Republic Final report of Ms. Elisabeth Rehn. of Croatia and the Pederal Espublic of Yugoslavia Special Rapporteur

CONTENTS

			II.				ı.	Introduct
?	co	>	200	9	CO.	>	308	no i
Returns	Security of person and property in the former sectors	Introduction	REPUBLIC OF CROATIA	C. Challenges ahead	Progress made	A. The situation in 1995-1996	I. BOSNIA AND HERZEGOVINA	Introduction
*	(4)	*:5	*				171	-22	19710
32 - 34	29 - 31	28	28 - 52	21 - 27	10 - 20	. 9	6 - 27	1 - 5	Paragraphs.
10	9	9	9	7	s	٨		w	Page

CONTENTS (continued)

			<	74						E.						III.		÷
9	æ	2	CEN	THE	×	ij.	r	×	Ģ	79	ùa	D,		'n	3	PER	H.	9	74	175
Final thoughts	Support of the Government of Finland	The OHCHR field operation	GENERAL CONCLUSIONS	QUESTION OF MISSING PERSONS	Challenges ahead	Hissing persons	Montenegro	Sandzak	Kosovo	Elections in Serbia	Freedom of expression and the media	Administration of justice	Police abuse, ill-treatment and impunity	Legal guarantees and institutional mechanisms	General observations	FEDERAL REPUBLIC OF YUGOSLAVIA	Challenges shead	Other human rights concerns	Missing persons	Humanitarian and social issues	Property rights
đ	٠														ैं	ं	ò.	93	0.50	5	50	her
94		80	88	83	77		74	72	66			61	- 59	57	S	23	47	2		38	35 -	BIB
94 - 97	93	- 92	- 97	83 - 87	- 82	76	- 75	- 73	- 71	65	64	- 63	- 60	- 58	56	- 82	- 52	42 - 46	12	- 40	- 37	Paragraphs
25	24	23	23	22	21	21	21	20	19	18	18	17	16	16	15	15	13	12	12	H	H	Page
															-

20

Introduction

- countries covered by the mandate, to recommend actions simed at improving that the Special Rapporteur on the situation of human rights in the territory who has been appointed as the Special Representative of the Secretary-General situation, and to intervene in specific matters where appropriate. an objective and impartial assessment of the human rights situation in the Special Rapportsur stipulated that her main objectives would be in Bosnia and Herzegovina, effective 16 January 1998. former Yugoslavia since 27 September 1995. This is the final report of the Special Rapporteur, On accepting that nomination, Ms. Rehn has served as Ms. Elisabeth Rehn,
- missions to gather information first-hand, to meet with victims of human objectives, it would be necessary to conduct regular and frequent field findings and conclusions. Since taking up her function, the Special Rapporteur has conducted a total of 19 field missions (normally lasting about rights violations, and to present directly to national authorities her The Special Rapporteur concluded early on that in order to realize her the first in October 1995 and the last in November 1997.
- provide her with adequate staff in the field to ensure a fective continuous monitoring and coordination with other international organizations involved. Field offices of the Office of the High Commissioner for Human Rights (OHCHR) recently, 1997/57) requested the Secretary-General, from within existing resources, to make all necessary resources available for the Special Rapportaur to carry out her mandate successfully and, in particular, to Croatia, the Federal Republic of Yugoslavia and the former Yugoslav Republic have accordingly been established in Bosnia and Herzegovina, the Republic the OHCHR field operation. been unable to implement her mandate satisfactorily without the support of of Macedonia. The Commission on Human Rights in its pertinent resolutions (most The Special Rapporteur wishes to emphasize that she would have
- and the Special Rapporteur recommends that all efforts be made to prepare such willing to provide financial support. OHCHR has been unable to secure adequate resources for the project, prepared a detailed project plan for the requested report. her mandate, Yugoslavia since the beginning of the conflict. To implement that aspect of her overview of the human rights situation in the territory of the former Special Rapporteur to provide to the Commission at its fifty-fourth session a report in the near future. assurances given to the Special Rapporteur by some Governments which were lling to provide financial support. This situation is highly regrettable, In resolution 1997/57, the Commission on Human Rights requested the the Special Rapporteur, with the assistance of external experts, Unfortunately,
- Bosnia and Herzegovina, the Republic of Croatia, and the Pederal Republic of The purpose of this final report is, first, to provide an overview of the main achievements which have been made in the field of human rights in Yugoslavia since Ms. Rehn took up her post in September 1995. challenges ahead, both for the Covernments concerned as well as further indicates the principal problems remaining and considers the international community, including the next Special Rapporteur. The report

I. BOSNIA AND HERZEGOVINA

The situation in 1995-1996

- mediators. had been present in Dayton, at the invitation of Mr. signing of the General Framework (the Dayton Agreement) in Paris, months, however, territories in the north-west and central regions. continuing in various parts of the country, especially situation in the city was markedly improved, although some firing incidents were still occurring. At the same time, expulsions of minorities were had been a target of shelling and sniping for over three years. still very limited, but the Special Rapporteur was guaranteed freedom of movement throughout the entire region. A ceasefire agreement, which had Bosnian Serb authorities. organizations (NGOs) and others, and Pale, where she met with the de facto still very limited, implemented on 2 October, Rapporteur was in early Richard Holbrooke, to present her views both to the parties and the The first mission where she met with government officials, leaders of non-governmental the political landscape would change dramatically Framework Agreement for Peace in Bosnia and in Paris, on 14 December 1995. The Special October 1995. taken by Ms. Rehn in her capacity as Special had a tremendous impact on life in Sarajevo, which At that time, access to Serb-held territories was In Bosnia and Herzegovina she visited A ceasefire agreement, which had been Within the subsequent Carl Bildt and The Special Rapporteur from Bosnian Serb-held The security Herzegovina with the
- humanitarian situations. their homes and no blockades of humanitarian supplies. since the signing of the Dayton Agreement. by military attacks on civilian targets, no Commission on Human Rights on 14 March 1996 Rapporteur described the major changes that feeling in Bosnia and Herzegovina as having been "transformed from despair to In cas of her first reports on Bosnia and Herwith profound implications for the country's human rights and targets, no mass expulsions of people had taken place in the country There had been no massacres caused (E/CN.4/1996/63), the Special She described the grom .
- gradually to increase, they would be mainly to areas under the control of of Human Rights and Fundamental Freedoms and its Protocols. returns"). Pilot projects on return agreed to at Dayton between the partners in the Pederation of Bosnia and Herzegovina - to Jajce, Stolac, Travnik and authorities sharing the nationality of the returnees (so-called "majority to be tested. residence, guaranteed in annex 7 to the Dayton Agreement, still being violated with impunity. those to liberty and security of person, and to months after Dayton was very different. securing internationally rights and freedoms provided in the European Convention for the Protection However, 'to all were encountering serious obstacles. The Dayton Agreement, Although returns of refugees and displaced persons were an abundance of serious human rights problems were still being recognized human rights and fundamental freedoms", ayton Agreement, at annex 6, had committed the parties to persons within their jurisdiction the highest level of The rights to return and to choice of A wide range of rights - notably freedom of movement were only beginning The reality three including
- the importance of giving all possible support From the early days of her mandate, the Special Rapporteur emphasized to the Commission on Human rederation Ombudsmen, as well as to elements of civil rights well into the future. international community to protect human rights in Bosnia and Herzegovina, but Rights created by the Dayton Agreement (annex 5) and to the Office of the it would be vital to have national mechanisms in place to safeguard human mbudsmen, as well as to elements of civil society including She stressed that short-term steps could be taken by the

B. Progress made

- Bosnia and Herzegovina who became refugees or were internally displaced has been slow and difficult. Since the signing of the Dayton Agreement, some 400,000 refugees and displaced persons have returned, including prefer to give this trend a very low profile. The returns are spontaneous and the returnees as well as local authorities returns also are taking place to the Republika Srpska, mainly in the west. far are still mainly majority returns. According to the united matters have taken place. Commissioner for Refugees, only some 35,000 minority returns have taken place, mostly in the Pederation. Recently there have been indications that minority over 600,000 Bosnian refugees remain abroad, while over 800,000 persons 110,000 refugees from abroad. still displaced within the country. return process for the approximately 2 million people from However, it is estimated that The returns that have taken place so
- of national background. act according to international standards, providing security to all regardless International Police Task Force (IPTF) continue restructuring the local police local law enforcement including full respect for freedom of movement and general respect for human forces in both entities and continue monitoring to ensure that local police The "easy returns" are now over, The key role in providing security to Hence, suitable conditions for minority returns must be ensured, authorities. H and 1998 will be the year for minority is thus imperative that returnees will be played by che
- than two years in terrible circumstances. The Special Rapporteur visited many collective centres in the country during her tenure, including in November 1997 when she visited the centre in Bjelovac, in eastern Bosnia and Herzegovina. In that centre there were some 200 displaced persons, mainly manner to hinder returns, shortage of housing and return. These include the lack of security guarantees for returnees, administrative obstacles which are often implemented in a discriminatory persons still living in collective centres. Rapporteur also wishes to call attention to the humanitarian situation of economic conditions, including lack of employment opportunities. entire population. from Sarajevo, Many ongoing human rights concerns are related to the question of living 12-14 persons per room, with only two showers for the Some such persons have spent more difficult social
- specific separation between the entities. been recent examples of 'hostile is relocations, e.g. returns to a place other than that of origin. ration between the entities. Relocations should be supported only in ific cases, when return clearly is not possible in the foreseeable future for example, in the case of the women from Srebrenica). It must always An emerging issue which will have to be addressed connected to relocations", especially to the zone of There have displaced persons and refugees do not wish to return to their places of origin for a range of reasons, including economic concerns. It is therefore of paramount importance to create opportunities for employment and other incentives for return. be voluntary. It may also be borne in mind that a significant number of

- minority returns have taken place and the necessary political will has been pre-war occupants intending to return, regardless of their nationality. In the divided city of Mostar, also, the return process has faced serious obstacles. UNHCR, together with the Office of the High Representative (OHR), received and are awaiting processing. been persistently uncooperative, and the process has largely been stalled. especially in predominantly Bosnian Croat west Mostar, the authorities have has tried to facilitate returns through special procedures. socially owned apartments. practices of the authorities, e.g. in the allocation of occupancy rights in and Serbs) to Sarajevo have frequently been prevented through discriminatory Dayton Agreement. than 3,100 applications for return (for 10,000 persons) have been ved and are awaiting processing. In the Republika Srpska, meanwhile, few Returns of minorities will be central to full implementation of the occupants intending In the Pederation, returns of minorities (Bosnian Croats Access to property in the city must be provided to to return, regardless of their nationality. In However,
- hundreds of thousands of pre-war occupants and owners of property. While there has been some progress made in the Federation to amend the property laws, largely as a result of pressure by the international community, the great importance that the property laws, which currently do not comply with international standards, be amended in both entities, especially the Law on Republika Srpska has not taken any steps to amend those laws. Republika Srpska. the Law on Use of Abandoned Property and the Law on Housing Relations in the Abandoned Apartments and the Law on Housing Relations in the Federation and As elaborated in the last report of the Special Rapporteur, Such amendments would allow fully for the return o
- designed to reduce the number of illegal checkpoints throughout the country. Stabilization Force (SFOR), to require uniform licence plates after welcomed the High Representative's plan, Rapporteur, who has repeatedly called for a uniform system to be implemented, matter of uniform licence plates has not yet been solved. January 1998. largely to the new IPTF checkpoint policy, implemented in May 1997, IPTF and the North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO) - led international Freedom of movement has continued slowly to improve, The progress made to date on to be undertaken in cooperation with freedom of movement but The Special the critical has been
- procedures since the outcome of trials often seems to depend on the restructuring of the local police in both entities, but also the reform of the particular attention to the questions of the administration of In her last report on Bosnia and Herzegovina to the Commission on Human Rights dated 15 October 1997 (E/CN.4/1998/13), the Special Rapporteur paid enforcement, and police reform. human rights situation in Bosnia and Herzegovina will require not only the The Special Rapporteur is extremely concerned about It is clear that any further improvement in justice, judicial nationalities of the judge and the parties. resources. the judiciary, in both entities, is a lack of qualified staff and financial × further serious problem with

- continue in many cases to be based purely on ethnic or political criteria rather than on the professional merits of candidates. Rapporteur has expressed deep concern, however, that judicial appointments promoting confidence in the rule of law throughout the country. dysfunctional and fragmented as a result of the conflict, will be on prosecutors. Herzegovina is finally nearing its completion. establishing the cantonal judicial 10 cantons of the Federation had already adopted laws on courts and laws prosecutors. Harmonization of the judicial system, which was left The Special Rapporteur is pleased to note that the process structure in the Federation of Bosnia and As of the end of 1997, 9 The Special vital to
- process and fair-trial principles. across inter-entity boundary lines, has resulted in frequent violations of due implementation Conference of December 1997), to establish a mechanism for effective inter-entity judicial cooperation. The virtual absence of such Bosnia and Herzegovina and its two entities immediately, and no later than 31 January 1998 (as stipulated in the conclusions of the Bonn Peace this respect, the Special Rapportsur has urged the responsible authorities in efforts, both to ensure adequate protection of human rights in that entity and relevant authorities in the Republika Srpska immediately to undertake similar general compliance with the standards of the ECHR. Pederation of Bosnia and Herzegovina in bringing its criminal legislation into cooperation, e.g. in the areas of service of process and access to evidence prevent the The Special Rapporteur has acknowledged the progress made in the judicial systems of the two entities from drifting apart. She has called on the
- on Human Rights"), as well as the functioning of the national human rights institutions. Rights Ombudsperson and the Human Rights Chamber (toge these institutions. It will further be of paramount importance that these institutions receive adequate funding. The Special Rapporteur wishes again this juncture to acknowledge the good work of the Office of the Federation has been pleased to note since then that progress has been made in drafting Ombudsmen in protecting human rights, and the work the Ombudsmen have done to legislation to ensure implementation of the decisions and recommendations of (established under annex 7 to the Dayton Agreement). notes the continuing need to assess what impact a Federation Human Rights educate the public generally on human rights issues. functioning of human rights mechanisms already existing in Bosnia and In her as foreseen in the Federation Constitution, would have on the effective last report, the Special Rapporteur considered at length before such court is established. Commission for Real Property Claims The Special Rapporteur wishes again at (together, The Special Rapporteur The Special Rapporteur including the Human the *Commission origin so as to reverse the effects of the war and so-called *ethnic cleansing". facilitate the return of refugees and displaced persons to their places of The principal challenge ahead in Bosnia and Herzegovina will be to All efforts must be taken to achieve this goal, and thereby fully projects must be made available only to those who comply with the Dayton demands of the authorities and political leaders that they work for this goal, not against it. Housing and property laws which serve to block returns must Agreement and are receptive to minority returns. be amended and implemented in both entities. implement annex 7 to the Dayton Agreement. The Special Rapporteur strongly Resources for reconstruction

C. Challenges ahead

- of internal police investigations must be established for police forces in investigated and followed up systematically by the IPTF. continue, and that human rights violations by law enforcement officials be Restructuring and training of local police forces, both entities. local police forces to verify their compliance with international standards training, must therefore continue. police forces serving all the citizens of Bosnia and Herzegovina. The Special Rapporteur emphasizes the importance of creating democratic It is equally important that monitoring of including specialized A functional system
- in the criminal justice area. This is a major challenge and more resources will be required, along with closer cooperation among organizations active in processing of judicial appointments, monitoring of sensitive trials, and independent judiciary. inter-entity cooperation and others. The judicial system equally needs to be reformed to ensure an impartial Many elements must be addressed, including the Legislative reform is needed, especially ø.

- rights and ensuring respect for the fundamental principle of equal rights for attention will also have to be paid to promoting economic, social and cultural necessary, and more effective response mechanisms must be developed. at maintaining separation of the three national groups. Discrimination is frequent in all areas of life, including access to housing, employment and taking place now are often different in nature and more subtle, but still aim progress made in two years, many human rights problems remain. education. The Special Rapporteur would like to point out that, despite the Systematic human rights monitoring and reporting thus remain Reports of arbitrary job dismissals are frequent throughout the Violations
- outside the region, and offering advice in creating programmes of action. organizations provide assistance by facilitating contacts with NGOs from developing NGO community in Bosnia and Herregovina, and that international Herzegovina. the consolidation of peace and the creation of civil society in Bosnia and will continue to be important that efforts be made to support the the Special Rapporteur, and she has found this cooperation very fruitful The Special Rapporteur would like to emphasize the importance of NGOs to NGOs and other citizens' groups have been in continuous contact
- be provided to relevant international agencies, including the International other and with the international community. happened to their loved ones and, whenever possible, Bosnia and Herzegovina. 26. The Special Rapporteur would like to draw attention, once again, to the plight of the families of the nearly 20,000 persons estimated to be missing in The authorities as a result must improve their cooperation with each They have the right to know the truth about what All available information should to receive the mortal throughout the country require that justice be carried out. brought to The Hague. strongly believes that 1998 must be the year when all those indicted will be puts pressure on those still at large to surrender. national authorities are responsible for arresting war criminals who do surrender. If they fail to do so, IPTF and SPOR will have to act; this Rapporteur wishes to stress that those guilty of war crimes must be brought to Finally. Those indicted by the ICTY should surrender or be extradited. and linked to the problem of missing persons, Reconciliation and the restoration of confidence The Special Rapporteur criminals who do not the Special

Committee of the Red Cross (ICRC), OHR, the International Commission on Hissing Persons (ICMP) and the International Criminal Tribunal for the former Yugoslavia (ICTY). The Special Rapporteur believes the question of missing persons to be one of the most burning issues in Bosnia and Herzegovina.

II. REPUBLIC OF CROATIA

A. Introduction

human rights NGOs, working in the Republic of Croatia. the duration of her mandate. thank the Croatian authorities for their constructive cooperation throughout Rights and the General Assembly, the most recent of which was dated conducted many missions to the Republic of Croatia and considered the country's human rights situation in six reports to the Commission on Human assistance received from international and local organizations, including October 1997 (E/CN. 4/1998/14). Since her appointment in September 1995, the Special Rapporteur has She is also grateful for the support and The Special Rapporteur wishes once again to

Security of person and property in the former sectors

- humanitarian law were reported to have occurred during and after Croatian military operations in the summer of that year, when the Government seize 29. After more than two years of observing human rights trends in Croatia, the Special Rapporteur is of the opinion that while more still needs to be and South, of which 559 are at the investigative stage, 3,785 are in first instance proceedings, and 1,236 have been brought through to final decision of October 1997, civilians, massive looting and burning, and attacks on fleeing civilians and back control over formerly Serb-held areas. These violations, many of which evidently were carried out by Croatian soldiers, had involved killings of relation to the military operations carried out in the former Sectors North accomplished, there are good reasons for optimism for the future. took up her mandate in 1995, According to information recently received from the Government, as a total of 5,580 criminal proceedings had been carried out in serious violations of human rights and through to final decisions. When she seized
- against remaining Croatian Serbs in the former sectors gradually decreased substantially improved Although some forms of abuse continue to be reported, such as ethnically based harassment and intimidation, international pressure brought on the Government, incidents of Over the course of the months following the operations, the security situation in the former sectors has largely because violence especially those committed against Serbs. One of the clearest tests of the Government's commitment to reconciliation will be the extent to which the Croatian police authorities maintain a climate of security for all residents of the Region in the critical months following the termination of the UNTAES coming from the Region of misconduct by officers of the Transitional Police will be the last of the former sectors to revert to Croatian government control, on 15 January 1998, when the mandate of the United Nations Transitional Administration for Eastern Slavonia, Baranja and Western Sirmium (UNTAES) comes to an end. (TPP) and a failure by the TPF vigorously to investigate alleged abuses The region of Eastern Slavonia, Baranja and Western Sirmium (the Region) The Special Rapporteur has noted continuing reports

C. Seturns

4

- Agresment on Operational Procedures for Return, signed in Osijek on 23 April 1997 by representatives of the Croatian Government, UNHCR and UNTAES However, of some 200,000 Croatian Serbs who fled to the Federal Republic of Yugoslavia and Bosnia and Herzegovina after Croatia's military operations in returned, most of them elderly people. 1995 in the former Sectors West, North and South, fewer than 10 per cent have Republic of Yugoslavia, signed in Belgrade on 23 August 1996, and the Normalization of Relations between the Republic of Croatia and the Federal generated with the conclusion of such accords as the Agreement on returns of Croatian Serbs from abroad have been slow. early years of the war, from the province of Kosovo, Pede Croatia, many due to persecution. Over the past two years, The question of returns continues to be a contentious issue in Croatia have returned from third countries. nearly 200,000 Croats from Bosnia and Herzegovina and Pederal Republic of Yugoslavia, immigrated to Many other ethnic Croats, refugees from the Some optimism was Meanwhile,
- 4.424 certificates for family returns, covering over 12,000 some 8,000 persons, mostly Croats, are in fact estimated to Region for other parts of Croatia. As for displaced persons, as of 9 December 1997, the Governmental Office for Displaced Persons and Refugees (ODPR) reported receiving 26,076 family applications, region of Eastern Slavonia. ODPR estimates for a total of 76,067 displaced persons, that some 9,500 Croatian Serbs have departed the By the same date, ODPR had fact estimated to have returned. for return to persons, of whom issued
- UNTAES mandate on 15 January 1998. Croatian authorities were trying to well as the occupation of homes by the newly arrived Croat immigrants, unrealistic government deadlines for Croatian Serbs to apply for 34. Pactors inhibiting returns have been not only bureaucratic but have also stemmed from the legal and financial obstacles to the recovery of property, as intended to be permanent. fear and uncertainty among members of the Serb population reportedly led to a number of departures from the Region, mainly for the Federal Republic of Yugoslavia, encourage Croatian Serbs to remain in the Region. reconstruction assistance, delays in funding for reconstruction, and the sectors' dire economic situation. although it is difficult to ascertain whether such departures were mainly for the Federal Republic of Prior to the conclusion of the However, the widespread

D. Property rights

- equitable manner. A small number of annulments of decisions by local housing commissions handing properties over to newly arrived Croats in some places has been a positive development, but enforcement of these decisions has yet to be of or compensation for Croatian Serb property which was taken over in this way. The Special Rapporteur has acknowledged the difficulties faced by the authorities in accommodating Bosnian Croat refugees and Croat displaced difficulties in regaining access to properties given over to displaced and persons, but the continuing problems for the return of Croatian Serbs cause doubt as to the will of the Government to solve the housing problem in an obstacle to return. Specified Property. immigrant Croats under the Law on the Temporary Takeover and Administration of local authorities, there has been little progress in either the restitution The failure to resolve the question of property rights has been a major Despite guidelines established to encourage such action Croatian Serb refugees continue to face serious
- property rights must be respected equally. obstacles to Serbs seeking to reclaim their lawful property. which favour displaced Croats over other groups and create unreasonable amendments to the Law on the Status of Displaced Persons deleting provisions The Special Rapporteur wishes to reiterate her view that all citizens' She has welcomed promised
- Serb property to ethnic Croat refugees through the Agency for Mediation in Transactions with Specified Real Estate (APN) has not yet reached a meaningful scale. Of the more than 5,000 requests for such transactions which have been selling their properties at unreasonably low prices. financial constraints. The Government programme for the sale, on reason ble terms, of Croatian Of the more than 5,000 requests for such transactions which he dear than 200 have so far been completed by the APN owing The result is that some elderly people have been

E. Humanitarian and social issues

- 38. Since September 1995, some progress has been made by the Croatian authorities in alleviating the difficult humanitarian situation faced by persons in the former sectors, most of whom are elderly Croatian Serbs. Much credit is due to the assistance provided by international relief agencies and measures applied in the granting of Croatian citizenship papers. The field offices of the High Commissioner for Human Rights have documented numerous still being given to ethnic Croats. of reconstruction assistance for destroyed houses, with priority apparently the Croatian Red Cross. Citizenship. cases of electricity and water systems, although imbalances remain in the provision arbitrary interpretation of certain provisions of the Croatian Law on The Government has restored basic infrastructure such Concern also remains over discriminatory The field
- papers and 126,000 passports have been issued to residents in the Region. However, concern remains over some 900 denials of citizenship pending for many applications for the issuance of Creatian documents. the region of Eastern Slavonia, was a considerable rise in the number of throughout the territory of Croatia including, for the first time since 1990, One positive aspect of nationwide elections held in April 1997 Some 145,000 citizenship the Special Rapporteur has received information on several cases long-term residents of Croatia have been denied such rights. In Although citizenship facilitates access to social benefits, cases, however, favourable decisions have finally been issued. months in administrative tribunals, which need to be effectively resolved. such In a few such in which relevant government programmes for economic development. She has therefore urged that special attention be paid to the areas by resurgence" of these areas will be crucial for in the former sectors, the Special Rapporteur believes that reported in the workplace, even for well-educated people, mixed marriages. Discrimination by employers against Croatian Serbs continues to be Considering the difficult economic situation prevailing the future of all citizens. including partners economic.

F. Missing persons

concerning a lack of concrete results. especially in view of criticism expressed by families of missing persons in Croatia, having been able to assist in monitoring exhumations which have been conducted clarify this matter, with little result. dealt with as a matter of most urgent humanitarian problems facing Croatia in the future and should be frequently met Croatian Government Commission for Detained and Missing Persons has held with Identifying the fate of more than 2,000 missing persons is one of the its counterpart but she strongly recommends such monit a matter of the highest priority. The Special Rapporteur has with associations of families of the missing and disappeared in the Pederal Republic of Yugoslavia to attempt to The Special Rapporteur .g in the future, regrets not

G. Other human rights concerns

- Cooperation in Europe (OSCE); the strengthening of the office of the Croatian establishment of a working group in September 1996, composed of government for the Protection of National Minorities and the European Convention Prevention of Torture and Inhuman or Degrading Treatment or Punishment European Convention on Human Rights; the signing of the Framework Convention the establishment of a long-term mission of the Organization for Croatian law with the European Convention on Human Rights and its Protocols; representatives and independent been taken by the authorities since her appointment two and a half years ago, inter alia, Croatia's accession to the Council of Europe and signing of the towards strengthening respect for human rights in Croatia. The Special Rapporteur has acknowledged several positive steps that have experts, to examine Degrading Treatment or Punishment; the the compatibility of These include,
- step in building confidence and alleviating uncertainties among Croatian Serbs Eastern Slavonia continued to be concerned about the amnesty law and, imminent departure of UNTAES, the local Serb population in the region of doubts have persisted, however, about its fair implementation. respect to the peaceful reintegration of Eastern Slavonia. The adoption of a general amnesty law in September 1996 was a positive the uncertainty about precisely who is covered by the law's With the Serious who have been determined not to fall within the amnesty's protection. fairness of trials conducted against provisions. International observers have also raised serious doubts about the persons, either in person or in absentia.

- Bosnia and Herzegovina in 1993. Yugoslavia, full cooperation with the International Criminal Tribunal indicted for alleged involvement in atrocities committed in central In late 1997, the Croatian Government took an important by facilitating the surrender of 10 war-crime suspects who had for the Former step towards
- criminal proceedings currently under way against an editor and a reporter of build a platform for television in Croatia in the twenty-first century reflect a degree of hostility to free expression on the part of the authorities. In this respect, the Special Rapporteur is concerned about judicial proceedings initiated against some independent journalists appear to of the President of the Republic. On the positive side, the independent porum 21' was recently launched, with various journalists coming together to the satirical weekly the effective monopoly control of the ruling Croatian Democratic Union party, there is reason for optimism concerning free expression in the media, which include several independent newspapers. However, recent Although electronic media, Feral Tribune for alleged seditious libel and defamation the Republic. On the positive side, the independent especially television, in Croatia remains
- censorship, but rather respect for human rights. intolerance, freedom is misused, as when media incite nationality based hatred or responsibility to report in an objective manner with respect for basic The Special Rapporteur wishes to note her view that freedom of media such expression is impermissible. When these responsibilities are not respected and when the the freedom of media in a democracy. That does not imply

H. Challenges ahead

- Confidence, Acceleration of Return and Normalization of Life in the Committee for the Realization of the Programme on the Establishment of end, after the successful completion of the UNTAES mission in January 1998, level of effective legal guarantees given to minority populations. War-Affected Areas (PoC), authorities should amphasize confidence-building among different national ethnic groups and make true reconciliation one of their central goals. The future of human rights in Croatia will depend a great deal on the of life and aims at Rapporteur welcomed which has called for greater tolerance in all facilitating the two-way return of displaced the establishment at the end of 1997 of the To this
- promoting tolerance should be strengthened, and there should be active strength of Committee has been dynamic in organizing meetings at different levels and resolution, targeting different sectors of society such as educators, enforcement officials, lawyers, judges and health workers. Although other agencies, had organized various seminars on reconciliation and conflict implementation of reconciliation initiatives. initiating appointments at Prior to its closure on the commitment of local authorities responsible for the the local level, its real challenge lies in the 15 January 1998, UNTAES, in cooperation with The role of the media in Although the Law

implementation of developmental, socio-economic and humanitarian project aimed at breaking down barriers between groups will be important for the to achieve its goals. future, although the PoC has drawn attention to a lack of financial resources representatives of civil society, NGOs and youth movements. relations. involvement of all Also, the work of the PoC could benefit from the inclusion of religious communities to ensure harmonious inter-ethnic socio-economic and humanitarian projects The

- the United Nations Children's Fund education on raising mine-awareness among children, emphasis must be put on mine-awareness training programmes that information more effectively and target, first of all, the most Special Rapporteur would like to recognize the Government's programme of come. The mines are mostly in rural areas where displaced persons are returning to work on the land. Because mine clearance is a slow process serious threat of many deaths and injuries to innocent victims The extent of mine contamination in Croatia is enormous, and presents the population, including children and returning refugees. (UNICEF). initiated together with the most vulnerable disseminate in years to
- addressed to create a sound basis for the future. health, educational and social situation of children should continue to be would be beneficial for the human rights environment. of financing and personnel. office continues to be faced with a range of difficulties including a shortage contribution has been made, the efforts of these institutions and improving channels of communication national and international human rights organizations. The human rights climate in Croatia has benefited from the good work of as well, by the Croatian Ombudsman, although the The Special Rapporteur believes that coordinating In addition, the An important
- programme will be implemented at the earliest possible opportunity. possible goals for the future. obligations, human rights. importance of human rights education programmes for the effective promotion of human rights standards and means for professionals and the general public, a lack of awareness of international for Human Rights in late 1996. technical The Special Rapporteur has noted that a needs-assessment mission for a and creation of a human rights documentation centre were cited as cooperation project was conducted providing expertise to develop human rights curricula in the Additionally. training of The Special Rapporteur hopes that this The mission identified, both their implementation. government officials in reporting by staff of the High Commissioner It noted the emong
- whom she has maintained continuous contact since assuming her post in 1995 displaced persons, women's like to emphasize the important role of NGOs and other citizens' groups, contacts has been developed and maintained. field offices of the High Commissioner for Human Rights, groups and members of the diplomatic corps. She has greatly appreciated the continuing cooperation she has received from related work of the field offices of the High Commissioner for Human Rights. 52. The Special Rapporteur's mandate appears to have had a significant impact in Croatia through the effect of her missions and interventions and the relevant interlocutors and the testimony provided her by refugees associations, religious leaders, human Through her missions and the The Special Rapporteur would a solid network of use all means at which will help NGOs in Croatis to thrive in the future. She looks to the Government to promote a strong framework for civil society cooperation her disposal to support the growing NGO community has been fruitful, and the Special Rapporteur has tried to in Croatia.

III. FEDERAL REPUBLIC OF YUGOSLAVIA

A. General observations

- towns of Novi Pazar, Pristing and Belgrade. Montenegro. Vojvodina in the Republic of Serbia, parts of the country relevant to her mandate, a functioning working relationship with the Government of the Federal of Yugoslavia. time in November Since taking up her mandate in 1995, Republic of Yugoslavia on 21-24 October 1997, when she visited The Shortly after her appointment she visited the Special Rapporteur conducted her last field mission to the 1995, and has since conducted 11 field missions to all and various locations in the Republic of the Special Rapporteur has including Kosovo, country for the Sandzak and Republic puile
- CHCHR office in Belgrade. towards better cooperation was taken in March 1996 with the opening of the in arranging her meetings with representatives of the State. has greatly assisted her in her work. and others) have maintained steady contact with the Special Rapporteur, minorities. The Special Rapporteur would like to emphasize the importance of NGOs in the country's social fabric. Both NGOs and other citizens' groups (including women's and human rights organizations, stillents, disabled persons has greatly assisted her in her work. The Government, for its part, has been forthcoming in facilitating the Special Rapporteur's visits to the country an representatives of local NGOs, private individuals and representatives of times enjoyed full freedom of movement The Special Rapporteur and OHCHR staff based in Belgrade have at The Government, and have been able to meet freely with A major step which pure
- of the High Commissioner for Human Rights in Kosovo. A United Nations hum rights presence in Kosovo would greatly facilitate the work of the Special Rapporteur and enable OHCHR staff to conduct more in-depth research and verification of alleged human rights abuses in that region. The need for the benefit both of the population and the Government of the Republic of in Kosovo, a presence is resolution 1997/57, called on the Government to allow the opening of an office Government still has not authorized the OHCHR to establish an office in requests and a However, and the Special Rapporteur believes its establishment would be to It will be recalled that the Commission on Human Rights, becoming increasingly urgent with tensions and violence mounting the Special Rapporteur is concerned that despite her repeated formal approach by the High Commissioner for Human Rights, the A United Nations human The need for such in its
- Rapporteur, and also recalls a number of key recommendations made present report reviews some of the most pressing human rights concerns in Federal Republic of Yugoslavia at the end of Ms. Rehn's tenure as Special especially been the case with the Serbian Ministry of the Interior. recommendations by the Special Rapporteur. satisfactory in terms of its lack of responsiveness to interventions and The cooperation extended by the Government has also been less than As discussed below. this has in her 8112

Rapporteur's most recent report on the country (E/CN.4/1998/15). situation in the Federal Republic of Yugoslavia can be found in the Special earlier reports. A more comprehensive analysis of the overall human rights

Legal quarantees and institutional mechanisms

Ministry of Justice has shown some interest, it has nevertheless expressed reservations, referring to legal obstacles and characterizing the institution note the positive attitude towards the proposal expressed by the Prime Minister of Montenegro (at the time of writing, the President-Elect) in as alien to the Yugoslav judicial system and tradition. discussions Ombudsman-like mechanism could considerably enhance citizens' possibilities institution. The Special Rapporteur has emphasized this problem in her reports and noted in her discussions with government representatives that an this recommendation have been varied. fully to enjoy and protect their rights. absence of strong national mechanisms for redress, such as an Ombudsman A matter of continuing concern in the Federal Republic of Yugoslavia is held in Podgorica in May 1997. The Special Rapporteur was pleased to The reactions by the authorities to In contrast, although the Serbian so far indicated any interest in ratifying the Optional Protocol. outside the Yugoslav judicial system after having exhausted all national individual complaint mechanism would enable individe 's to seek redress International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights. avenues. also strongly recommended that the Government follow the example of other former Yugoslav republics and ratify the Optional Protocol to the In her communications with the authorities the Special Rapporteur has The Special Rapporteur notes with regret that the Government has not The Protocol's

Police abuse. ill-treatment and impunity

ill-treatment and torture are promptly investigated and perpetrators brought to justice. In this context the Special Rapporteur wishes to stress that the increased cooperation. She is, nevertheless, concerned that the prese unacceptable level of police abuse will persist, unless allegations of sporadically, she was encouraged by the Minister's expressed readiness for the Ministry has so far responded to the Special Rapporteur's inquiries only urged the Minister to investigate the cases brought to his attention. Belgrade on 24 October she reiterated her concern over these reports, and occasions in the last year submitted detailed information of these allegations to the Serbian Ministry of the Interior. In her meeting with the Minister in pass with impunity. She has continued to receive reports of such cases, particularly from Kosovo (discussed separately below), and has on severa ill-treatment in custody, over the increasing number of allegations of police abuse, torture and thus are obliged (under articles 12 and 13) to impartially investigate alleged Inhuman or Degrading Treatment or Punishment, and the competent authorities of torture without In her earlier reports the Special Rapporteur expressed deep concern is a party to the 1984 Convention against Torture and other Cruel, She is, nevertheless, concerned that the present delay. which the competent authorities apparently allow to and has on several exclusively associated with the volatile situation in Kosovo. It should be noted that cases of police abuse are not a problem Serious cases arbitrarily detained when police violently dispersed demonstrators. controversial acts. with street demonstrations in Belgrade and elsewhere in 1996-1997, reaction to the ousting of the city's mayor, Mr. Zoran Djindjic, and other of ill-treatment by the police were recorded, e.g. during winter protests in Belgrade on 30 September and 1 A large number of people were injured and some and later in connection October 1997, in

D. Administration of justice

- decisions. The new law on the judiciary, which could at least formally strengthen the position of the country's judges, is yet to be enacted. Republic of Yugoslavia, and the Special Rapporteur has recorded and reported on several examples of this problem in the past. Judges on all levels complain that they lack the material security and official authority that enforcement authorities have failed in their duty to implement court should be connected to their office. Safeguards for an independent judiciary remain weak in the Federal There are instances where law
- him and members of his family. home of one of the defence lawyers, Mr. Hasan Hoti, harassing and threatening month before being brought to an investigating judge. It is also reported defendants were apparently held in unacknowledged detention for up to one the police and other individuals. Lawyers also complained that have Tree access to their clients during the pre-trial period. severely ill-treated or tortured in police custody and forced to give self-incriminating statements about their involvement in armed attacks against defendants in the October trial claimed that most of their clients were monitored the court proceedings in all three cases. crimes opened on 27 October 1997 in Pristina. involvement in crimes against the State and "terrorist" activities. A th 62. Pair trial and pre-detention standards are particularly at stake in politically sensitive trials. In her report of 10 September 1997 (E/CN.4/1998/9), the Special Rapporteur presented her observations on after the incident. two trials held on 18 November, three unidentified armed men forced themselves into the in May-July 1997 in which 35 persons were charged with The police arrived at the scene half an hour Lawyers also complained that they did not OHCHR staff from Belgrade Lawyers representing the Some of the
- required under article 12 of the Convention against Torture. The Special Rapporteur also wishes to recall article 15 of the Convention, under which each State party shall ensure that statements which are established to have been made as a result of torture shall not be invoked in any proceedings. defendants were acquitted due to lack of evidence. sentenced them to prison terms ranging from 4 to 20 Pristina District Court found 17 of the defendants guilty nonetheless, that would link the defendants to the charges concerned. inadmissible as they had been given under duress. torture and requested that their statements to the police be declared in public further appears that the prosecution failed to present solid material evidence court hearings most of the defendants reiterated their allegations of The court proceedings, which lasted approximately two months, were held and no action was taken to investigate the allegations of torture, and largely followed basic procedural standards. The court rejected this years. On 16 December the However, during Two of the B

Freedom of expression and the media

published material of a highly nationalistic nature, supporting and Government-controlled press in the expression. much debated and criticized draft law on information has yet to be adopted by been particularly obvious in times of elections, when the State media have company clearly dominates the airwaves in the countryside. television and radio stations operate in Belgrade, the State-run situation, the principal sources of information for the majority of the population remain television and radio. While a number of independent has also grown. and hatred, propagating intolerance towards other nations, including minorities living in far contain Serbian two years. strongly supportive of the ruling government coalition in Serbia. During the years of conflict in Bosnia and Herzegovina and Croatia, several provisions which could be used to limit freedom of the occurrence of such reports and articles has decreased in the Parliament. While some Yugoslav media still show signs of ethnic prejudice However, partly owing to the country's grave economic The number of newspapers with an independent editorial policy As noted in earlier reports, Federal Republic of Yugoslavia routinely the drafts presented so This problem broadcasting the presidential elections failed to produce a winner as neither of the candidates secured a majority of the votes. The second round on 5 October was also inconclusive as less than 50 per cent of voters turned out to vote. National Assembly has yet to be constituted, and the first round of the requirements for Alliance decided to boycott those elections, claiming that minimum Twelve opposition parties including the Democratic Party and the Civic September 1997 parliamentary and presidential elections were held in Serbia. irregularities during the September 1996 municipal elections in Serbia. very much in focus in the last year. who enjoyed a considerable advantage over Mr. Seselj in terms of both monitors reported a clear bias on State television towards Mr. held on 7 boycotted by the ethnic Albanian population in Kosovo. (E/CN.4/1997/56), the Special Rapporteur gave her observations regarding of the country. quantitative and qualitative coverage. 100 per cent of the votes in favour of Mr. Milutinovic. tabulated showing a turnout of close to irregularities also in the second round of these elections, observing, for Milutinovic emerged as the victor. they met in a second round of voting held on 21 December, when Milan Milutinovic, and Mr. Vojislav Seselj were the top two finishers, result new elections were announced and the first round of voting was on 7 December. This time the candidate of the Socialist Party, Problems and shortcomings in the electoral process in Serbia have been that polling stations did not open on election day in different parts fairness were not met. Despite this, results from some of these stations close to 100 per cent, and close to In her report of January 1997 OSCE reported continuing The elections were also largely The newly elected International media Milutinovic

Elections in Serbia

C. Kosevo

- which may give rise to further political radicalization and violence in the attacks over the last two years. appears to be growing increasingly frustrated with the situation in Kosovo, Kosova* has assumed responsibility for most of these acts. In reaction to these attacks the police have launched large-scale raids, in which houses have the larger Balkan context. In the last few months, armed attacks against the police and private individuals have claimed several lives and left many people emphasizing that the mounting problems in that region must not be neglected in particular attention to the human rights situation in Kosovo, continuously searched and a large number of people questioned. future. Since the beginning of her mandate the Special Rapporteur has paid As before, Around 40 persons have reportedly lost their lives in armed the organization calling itself "the Liberation Army of The general
- man, Mr. Halit Geci, later died of his injuries at ho pital. The OHCHR Belgrade office inquired with the Serbian Ministry of the Interior whether a investigations had been initiated to clarify the circumstances of Mr. Geci's the crossfire were injured, armed action in the village of Lausa, and several persons who were caught in the crossfire were injured, including at least one minor. One Kosovo Albani a several-hour-long gunfire exchange, in which four police officers and one Kosovo Albanian man were wounded. At the same time the police also undertook Srbica, in an attempt to arrest a group of people suspected of involvement in 67. On 26 November, heavily armed police units supported by armoured vehicles and helicopters reportedly surrounded a number of villages near armed attacks against the police a few days earlier. So far the Ministry has not responded. The siege culminated in One Kosovo Albanian whether any
- has in the last months taken further testimony of individual cases. Belgrade continues to receive reports of such abuses on victims of ill-treatment and torture. raised this Kosovo. 68. The continuing occurrence of serious abuses by the police and security forces is one of the most alarming aspects of the human rights situation in During her visits to the region the Special Rapporteur has repeatedly issue with the local authorities, and also personally interviewed Regrettably, the OHCHR office in a regular basis, and
- died of injuries sustained in police custody. However, accinformation received from the Serbian Ministry of Justice, OHCHR office in Belgrade received reports indicating that Mr. Zeneli had been subjected to ill-treatment during interrogations, and suggesting he may have indicted on 28 July for alleged involvement in terrorist activities. trial in Pristing discussed above, died at the prison hospital in Belgrade. during an armed attack on a police station in Klincina village near Pec serious illness. absentia, Mr. Adrian Krasniqi, was reportedly shot dead by the police, Zeneli had reportedly been in police custody since 30 April 1997, October. On 17 October, Mr. Jonuz Zeneli, Meanwhile, one of the two defendants who one of the defendants in the October However, according to official he died as a result were to be tried The and was
- and other locations in Kosovo, to voice their demand to return to State 70. On 1 October 1997, the Independent Students' Unions of the Albanian-language parallel university organized street protests in Pristina towns where student protests were held the same day. A second demonstration held on 29 October passed without violence in Printing. The Special Rapporteur had earlier appealed to the students during discussions in Printing to act according to the law to avoid violence. She also requested the Minister of Interior in Belgrade to order the police not to use violence if Seven leaders of the protest were badly beaten and taken to the central police was pleased to learn that the second demonstration in Pristina concluded station in Pristina for questioning. Around 100 persons were injured in the police intervention and ensuing chaos. university premises. when dispersing gatherings in other locations, such as Kosovska Mitrovica and peacefully. riot police violently dispersed the crowd using truncheons and teargas. sity premises. OHCHR staff monitored the demonstration in Pristina on After blocking the demonstrators from proceeding beyond their gathering However, it was reported that the police used excessive force Similar scenes were reported from other The Special Rapporteur

Serbian side favoured a step-by-step approach, starting with the normalization Albanian side insisted on a comprehensive approach, demanding the return of of the primary and secondary schools. all students to all levels of education at the same time. Albanian students to schools and university premises, and that they demanded integration into the Serbian educational system as a precondition. The the Serbian delegation refused to agree on a timetable for the return of still adhering to their original positions. supervision of the Italian humanitarian organization the Society of in Kosovo met in Pristina and Belgrade in early October 1997 under the implementation of the September 1996 memorandum of understanding on education agreement will be essential to reduce inter-ethnic and political tensions in Eugidio. Pollowing international pressure, the so-called 3+3 Commission for the It appears that the talks were inconclusive with both parties Progress on implementation of the The Albanian side claimed that Apparently the 5, ...

Sandrak

- to harassment and violence, and tens of thousands of people fled Sandrak, mostly to western European countries. Several abductions of Muslims tool rights violations generally attributed to Bosnian Serb paramilitary harassment by the police of mainly, though not exclusively, Muslim political place 1992-1993 in places such as Strpc1 and Mioce, none of which have ever been properly investigated by the authorities. Systematic ill-treatment an abandon their villages in the border regions around Sjeverin and Bukovica, army reservists and the police. activists were also recorded at that time. long border with Bosnia and Herzegovina, was the scene of grave human During the conflict in the former Yugoslavia, the Sandzak region, with Thousands of Sandzak Muslims were forced to Several abductions of Muslims took Systematic ill-treatment and gangs dus
- discrimination, especially in employment and education, and that laws are unevenly and selectively applied depending on a person's ethnicity. Poli are reported only sporadically. However, the Special Rapporteur continues to receive information indicating that members of the Muslim community experience tensions have also increased following the Serbian Government's decision in Today the situation in Sandzak is relatively stable, and serious abuses

Special Rapporteur is concerned that inter-ethnic mistrust and animosity will persist in Sandzak, unless the State authorities accept their responsibility to investigate past abuses and address the remaining human rights problems in July 1997 to impose mandatory rule in the municipality of Novi Pazar. the region.

I. Montenegro

- willingness to cooperate with the Special Rapporteur. inter alia, in its prompt responses to her intervention to consider and implement her recommendations. She is positive trend will continue in the future. In the past year the Government of Montenegro has shown an increased responses to her interventions and in its openness She is hopeful that this This has been evident,
- outcome was announced Mr. Bulatovic protested the result, alleging major fraud second round of voting on 19 October, in which Mr. Djukanovic secured the majority of the votes, thus becoming the Republic's new President. The OSCE observer mission called the elections regular and technically well executed, and did not report any major violation of electoral rules. Mr. Djukanovic i examining these complaints at the time of writing of this report. on the part of Mr. Djukanovic's camp. to assume his duties on 15 January 1998. President Momir than October was inconclusive as neither of the candidates managed to secure The first round of the Montenegrin presidential elections held 50 per cent of the votes cast. Bulatovic and Prime Minister Milo Djukanovic, met in the The Federal Supreme Court However, immediately after the The two main contenders, Mr. Djukanovic is incumbent

J. Missing persons

Herzegovina, and also expressed its dissatisfaction with identification detailed data on former Yugoslav National Army soldiers missing in Bosnia and Humanitarian Affairs and Missing Persons of the Federal Republic of Yugoslavia information between the two Commissions appears to have stalled, parties agreed to meet again in Slavonski Brod on 23 December. had been submitted earlier by the Croatian Commission. protocols on persons killed in Croatia's military operations of 1995, which Balgrade on 12 November. (PRY) and the Croatian Commission for Detained and Missing Persons met were also expected to attend these talks. parties agreed to meet again in Slavonski Brod on 23 December. Delegations representing the Republika Srpska (Bosnia and Herzegovina) and Bosnian Croats the Federal Republic of Yugoslavia. submí t its part, More than four months after their last meeting, the Commission for 1,100 protocols of missing persons, but has received only Croatia has produced only 250 of the 956 protocols requested by During the talks the FRY Commission demanded Croatia has requested The exchange chat but both 700 so far. of the legislative reform, the rule of law and t transparency in the work of State bodies. these recommendations concerns serious and deep-rooted problems regarding presented in her earlier reports. Pederal Republic of Yugoslavia has largely ignored the recommendations The Special Rapporteur is deeply concerned that the Government of the the rule of law and the issue of accountability and She wishes to emphasize that the core of Until these issues, which affect all citizens, are addressed, the problems of specific groups in society, as ethnic and linguistic minorities, will remain unresolved. The Specia Rapporteur calls again on the Government to take prompt and decisive action to review and implement the recommendations presented in her earlier reports. The Special such

K. Challenges shead

- grievances to the attention of the United Nations Human Rights Committee ratify the Optional Protocol to the International Covenant on Civil an Political Rights, which would enable individuals to bring human rights mechanism, such as an ombudsman-type institution. The Government should also safeguards for the protection of human rights. The Government should take immediate steps to strengthen legal and other It should in particular work
- such crimes brought to justice without delay. brutality, ill-treatment and torture in detention, particularly in Kosovo. In order to curb the present trend of impunity, all alleged cases of police irregularities must be thoroughly investigated and the persons responsible for The Government must take firm measures to end continuing police
- activities in the region. She also urges the Government to ensure that the police and security forces operating in Kosovo carry out their duties in strict compliance with national and international human rights standards and calls on the parties to refrain from the use of force and to end all armed The Special Rapporteur is alarmed by the escalating violence in Kosovo,
- Rights. authorize the opening of an office of the United Nations High Commissioner for Human Rights in Kosovo, as previously called for by the Commission on Human The Special Rapporteur urges the Government to reconsider its refusal to
- should allow equal access of all main political parties to State-run accordance with the recommendations presented by the OSCE. electronic media. deficiencies in the relevant legal framework, expression. the highest international standards pertaining to the right to freedom of Irregularities and problems in the election process in Serbia, including It should also ensure that the new draft should be promptly addressed in media law reflects The Government

IV. THE QUESTION OF MISSING PERSONS

640

Rapporteur to pay special attention to the question of missing persons in reports. The issue is one of the most pressing human rights questions now faced in the countries covered by the Special Rapporteur's mandate. Accor activities which have taken place in the region concerning missing persons. The question may well be asked, however, why so little progress has been made in resolving the fate of the missing, despite the efforts of numerous agencies to the latest ICRC data, some 19,676 persons are still listed as missing in Bosnia and Herzegovina, while Croatian government data puts the figure at 2,242 in Croatia. (E/CN.4/1998/13, organizations. The Commission on Human Rights, in resolution 1997/57, asked the Special E/CN.4/1998/14). In her last reports to the Commission on Human Rights the Special Rapporteur detailed the

the following observations: Based on her personal findings, the Special Rapporteur would like to conduct exhumations. others is that the vast majority of missing persons have been killed. The tragic truth which will likely have to be accepted by families and In this case, the only way to learn about missing persons' fates is to Exhumations in the territory have been seriously hampered both by a lack resources and by obstacles created by local authorities.

to identify many of the exhumed mortal remains. lack of adequate ante mortem data makes it exceptionally difficult

- national authorities. They should have the support of international organizations in the field, but there should be no doubt as to their main responsibilities in connection to the issue of missing persons, that the main responsibility for solving the question is, and will remain, that of local and national authorities. They should have the support of international The Special Rapporteur stated, when she was entrusted with
- perform the function of a Rights can raise the issue, keep the international community informed and International Commission on Missing Persons and the Office of the High Representative. United Nations mechanisms can play only a subsidiary role. available to them related to missing persons. Republic of Yugoslavia lenk the political will to share Croat authorities in the Federation, and the authorities in the Federal authorities of the Republika Srpska entity in Bosnia and Herzegovina, Bosnian exercise some pressure on responsible authorities. rform the function of a tracing agency. As noted in the Dayton is the ICRC which must assume the central role in this matter. Special be more energetically addressed by pertinent actors, including The Special Rapporteur has reason to conclude that, in particular, Rapporteur and the Office of the High Commissioner for Human As noted in the Dayton Agreement, She believes that this problem They cannot, however, ail information
- Rumours of continuing cases of hidden detention remain widespread and were fed matter of so-called 'hidden detention', systematic inspections of detention facilities must be put prosecuted the prison in Zenica (Pederation). by the cases of the two Bosnian Serbs found in military premises adjoined to The Special Rapporteur would also like to call for urgent action on the of so-called 'hidden detention', which is related to missing persons. that this case be fully investigated and the responsible persons be for the illegal detention of the two. The Special Rapporteur demands, Clear procedures for in place

V. GENERAL CONCLUSIONS

A. The OHCHR field operation

practice. offices cannot substitute for one's own personal experiences. The Special Rapporteur thus travelled far more in the field than had been the previous she has actively travelled in the field. The Special Rapporteur believes it has been vital to her mandate that The field operation of the Office of the High Commissioner Even efficient reporting from field ersonal experiences. The Special organizations and local NGOs, in making these missions useful and productive Human Rights played a crucial role, in cooperation with other international

- have offered the Special Rapporteur and OHCHR their full cooperation. the respective Governments approved resolutions of the Commission on Human Rights. The OHCHR field operation, present in all the countries in the mandate the Special Rapporteur, was initiated and has been maintained on the basis the establishment of 11 should be stressed that the OHCHR offices and
- organizations engaged in human rights activities. implementation of her mandate. professionals would be essential under any circumstances for the proper would like to Follow-up activities, assisting in the drafting of situation, follows: w-up activities, assisting in the drafting of reports, statements, interventions, and helping to coordinate the work of all internat The specific activities of OHCHR field staff may be summarized gathering and analysing information about the human rights preparing missions of the Special Rapporteur and conducting emphasize that a field presence staffed by The Special Rapporteur competent international

3000

- inadequate, and the Special Rapporteur calls on OHCHR and Governments to do everything possible to remedy this situation. It is the responsibility both of the leadership of the field operation and the leadership at headquarters in Geneva to monitor carefully the activities and well-being of staff in the personal problems occur. field, and to make necessary interventions when either professional or the field operation greatly at risk. delineation of administrative responsibilities for support to the field provided by OHCHR in Geneva has depended fully on the efforts of a very few Individuals, whose hard work has been greatly appreciated by the Speci.

 Rapporteur. She would like to point out, however, the lack of a clear from OHCHR headquarters in Geneva. An efficient field operation demands much both from individual staff and which are available to OHCHR headquarters in Geneva are clearly The absence of one or two persons places the smooth functioning of Administrative and financial support Overall resources, both human and Special
- same time that Governments assign new tasks to the Special Rapporteur through resolutions, they seldom commit the resources necessary to fulfil those tasks. In some cases OHCHR has itself been to blame for financial shortfalls. Governments have been ready to contribute to the activities of the Special restructuring of CHCHR will help to resolve these problems. Moreover Special Rapporteur would like to recommend that the High Commissioner OHCHR in consultations with Governments in that regard. Rapporteur, but the Secretariat has not reported in a timely manner on how contributions. earlier funds were used, nor did it produce necessary documents to obtain new Rights establish a professional fund-raising unit within OHCHR. OHCHR has suffered from an absence of organized fund-raising. The Special Rapporteur has stated that she is ready She hopes Moreover, that to support

10

Support of the Government of Finland

decision to support her through the financing of a personal assistant, based received from the Government of Special Rapporteur is grateful Finland in the exercise of her mandate. for the support which she has the daily contacts between the field and the Special Rapporteur much easier. been most important. The personal assistant has served as a focal point the Special Rapporteur, coordinating all of her activities. He has also Helsinki and who accompanied the Special Rapporteur on field missions, He has also made

C. Final thoughts

- and most issues in society are highly politicized. Implementation of legislation is slow. necessarily mean only going political processes are strongly centralized, and there is a clear The countries covered by the mandate of the Special Rapporteur are not between authorities and citizens. Changes in la ly mean changes in reality at the "grass-roots" through a post-war era, they are experiencing a post-communist era. Media often do not report objectively Changes in legislation do not level.
- must be considered, and to accomplish this we must more clearly acknowledge disabled persons, individual rights. focuses on collective rights and the rights of ethnic groups. In the field of human rights, a main difficulty is that the discussion Yet within every group there are different needs, different s. There are the rights of the child, the rights and the needs of persons, the right to equality between the sexes, and so on. The not individual
- Many human rights issues do not recognize the borders between the are much the same, Bosnia and Herzegovina, the Republic of Croatia, and the Federal Republic of the mandate of the Special Rapporteur continue to cover the three which the Governments in the region of Yugoslavia. recommendations or seriously tried to solve problems described förmer Yugoslavia, The Special Rapporteur has noted with satisfaction the instances in Much still remains to be done. Despite the differences in the situations in different parts of and their causes and solutions are still strongly linked. many basic problems referred to in the present her mandate have implemented some of She believes it to be crucial countries.
- between international actors, and regardless of who will get the credit for space to human rights issues, both reported violations and more generally in the region for closely following her activities. 97. The only leverage available to the Special Rapporteur has been her high visibility, which guarantees a high profile for issues of human rights, through field missions, reports and communications with officials. The are there in the first place. different societies create their own institutions and laws, goal of all activities from other international organizations. the excellent cooperation she has received from the local NGO community cooperation with other international organizations has emphasized Rapporteur would like also to thank the representatives of the media educating a broader public. efforts. It is important, above all, to remember constantly why we in the human rights field in the region: to help own institutions and laws, regardless of boundaries The Special Rapporteur is also thankful She has found it very They have given much

-

