This response to a COI query has been elaborated according to the EUAA COI Report Methodology and EUAA Writing and Referencing Guide.

Query responses are produced in response to COI information requests received from asylum authorities within EU+ countries or initiated by EUAA based on COI information needs. Query responses are produced within a limited time period, typically within 5 to 10 days. Within these time constraints, the information provided in this response has been researched, evaluated and processed with utmost care.

All sources used are referenced and cited in the bibliography section. A quality review has been performed in line with the above mentioned COI methodology. This document does not claim to be exhaustive or conclusive as to the merit of any particular claim to international protection. If a certain event, person or organisation is not mentioned in the report, this does not mean that the event has not taken place or that the person or organisation does not exist. Terminology used should not be regarded as indicative of a particular legal position.

The information in the response does not necessarily reflect the opinion of EUAA and makes no political statement whatsoever. The target audience is caseworkers, COI researchers, policy makers, and decision-making authorities. Any event taking place after the reference period is not included in this query response.

COI QUERY RESPONSE – Nigeria

Idol Worshipping in Anambra, Delta, Edo, and Enugu states, including prevalence and whether roles are inherited, incidents of forced participation in rituals, consequences for refusal to join, including treatment of Christians; availability of state protection

1. Prevalence and inheritance of roles of Idol Worshipping in Anambra, Delta, Edo, and Enugu states

Information on idol worship in Anambra, Delta, Edo, and Enugu states was scarce among the sources consulted by EUAA within the time constraints of this query. However, the following information may be relevant.

In 2019, the Secretary to State Government (SSG) of Anambra ‘expressed concern over a steady increase in idol worship in many parts of Nigeria, including the South East.’¹

Syncretism was reported to be common in Nigeria, merging aspects of Islam or Christianity with traditional practices.² In the report published in March 2019, titled ‘Oath Taking in Edo: Usages and Misappropriations of the Native Justice System’, the author³ indicates that Christians in Edo State resorted to ‘native justice’ noting that indigenous worshippers, when searching for help, would vary the deities they appealed.⁴

Without providing further details, Nigerian newspapers reported in 2022 public statements by the State Governor of Anambra, alleging that ‘idolatry is the fastest-growing religion in the state’ especially among youth.⁵ He reportedly made further statements urging the church and ‘all denominations to unite in one body in Christ Jesus’ and ‘fight the common criminals’ in reference to ‘occultic powers’.⁶

2. Incidents of forced participation in rituals and consequences for refusal to join

Information on incidents of forced participation in rituals and consequences for refusal to join could not be found among the sources consulted by EUAA within time constraints to complete the query.

3. Treatment of Christians in the context of idol worshipping

Information on treatment of Christians in the context of idol worshipping was scarce among the sources consulted by EUAA within time constraints. However, the following information may be relevant.

Nigerian media sources reported in 2019 the decision by a traditional ruler in Delta state of replacing an idolatry statue, referred to as the Nneoma or Nnem-omai statue, with a Christian symbol, namely a statue of Jesus Christ.⁷ The sources consulted by Delta Post in relation to this episode expressed their concern about the consequences that such action against 'the gods' could bring to the community.⁸

A 2019 article on the Nigerian news website NaijaGists.com reported on an incident in Urora, Edo State, in which traditional community leaders and chief priests ordered Christian church services to stop by 8am. One pastor refused to do so and continued his service but was attacked and beaten by a group of youths described by the source as 'idol worshippers'.⁹

4. State protection for Christians in the context of idol worshipping

Information on state protection for Christians in the context of idol worshipping could not be found among the sources consulted by EUAA within time constraints to complete the query.
